

We are the authors of the book and text sector.

The European Writers' Council represents 160.000 professional writers and translators in the book and text sector in all genres, from all over Europe.

- The European Writers' Council is the federation of 46 national organisations of professional writers and translators in 30 countries including the EU, as well as Belarus, Iceland, Norway, Switzerland, Turkey and Montenegro, altogether writing in 32 languages.
- The EWC defends the professional interests of its members in economic, legal and political contexts, their right to remuneration and compensation for their works, their relevance in cultural and social policy, freedom of expression, freedom of association, and the importance of lesser spoken and written languages.
- The EWC champions the diversity of literatures while raising awareness for both the role of authors in society and the need to have their social, moral and economic rights respected in the digital age.
- The EWC promotes the need for a wider access to culture, including the production of special formats for the visually impaired persons of the world.
- The EWC remains determined to raise and publicly present the commitment of professional writers and translators to shaping the profile of Europe through individual creativity within the diversity of expressions in the rich variety of living European languages.
- The EWC is part of the consortium implementing the European Union Prize for Literature (EUPL), in collaboration with the European Commission.
- The EWC is part of the Authors' Group with ECSA, FERA and FSE.

If you want to know more about writing, authors' rights and copyright, E-lending, public lending right, levies and licenses, freedom of expression and writers under pressure, the needs of a diverse literature in Europe or the ecosystem of the book market in the era of AI and digital economy: The EWC and its honorary board are at your disposal.

Nina George
President

Myriam Diocaretz
Secretary-General